

Sean Waite, WA1TE

Sean Waite, WA1TE, was first licensed as KB1YOQ in 2012. He enjoys chasing DX on HF, as well as participating as he can in HF contests. After being introduced to VHF+ contesting in January 2016 by Chris KG6CIH, he caught the VHF weak signal bug and has been gradually adding capabilities. In addition to working contests fixed and as a rover, he has begun working the amateur radio satellites. Someday he hopes that the accumulated pile of radio bits at his house will come together to net him some EME and Meteor Scatter contacts. He is also working on getting on the microwaves. He also enjoys Summits on the Air. He has participated in communications for the Boston Marathon in 2017 and 2018.

He often gets confused about which call sign he's supposed to be using, having in the last year worked contests and other events as WA1TE, K1SIG, W1NY and NE1C.

Sean works as a Systems Administrator with Red Hat, Inc. He lives in Massachusetts with his wife, son, and dog, with another baby on the way."
